Chapter 1 by dragonsofyore

I knew I was different.

Different, from others I knew.

I know now,

And I wish I was normal.

Chapter 2 by 🐾Alahna🐾

My hair is short,

Unlike most girls i knew.

My eyes were dark,

While the other girls had brilliant blue eyes that glinted in the sun like diamonds.

Chapter 3 by Gargi

I change schools every year,

That's thrice as more than my peers can bear.

I always fear that my best friend would abandon me,

What if she finds another girl with whom she agrees?

I wish I were normal...

As normal as a girl could be...

Chapter 4 by Laura

Sitting at the mirror

Looking back at the person

I hated to see

I hated to be normal
but I also hated being me

I was a traveler
Learning as the world past by
Learning that I had to be normal
But as I tried to be
It just didn't seem like me

I could never have those blue eyes
Or all those friends
I was no one
Different
The worst thing to be

Chapter 5 by ไลยกร พัลเกอร์

I wish they would let me be me,

But they won't so I can't let them see.

Now I'm shackled, with these abnormalities

I guess they don't like my personality.

Why are we bound by these laws

That say that we can't have flaws?

If all they can do is hate,

Then the glowing fires from underneath await.

If there is one who wants to look under

One who wants to break through these chains,

And help me with all my pains.

But then I wake up from my dreams,

And realize that everything isn't as it seems.

That no one has seen the one and only me,

That no one has heard my plea.

Yet still I hold onto hope,

That someone will come along then help me cope.

Perhaps they also have felt the pains of rejection,

And used to curse their reflection.

Chapter 7 by

But what is normal anyway?
who so, invented the word?
To say that you are different is-absolutely absurd.

Who, when, and whatever for,
Because we are all unique
For there is something each us in ourselves we long to seek.

ills and disabilities,

yes- I too long to yearn

to be different, normal will do I suppose?

Does it matter? I would rather

To know you all and you know me,
So that we could educate-all of us together, yes, so we do not get into such a state!

Chapter 8 by the smiling man

Being different is normal

Being normal is absurd

Nobody will ever change that

Just be who you are
